89 Editorial  The Magic of Money and Ministry
91 Gift Mtukwa  A Reconsideration of Self-Support in Light of Paul’s “Collection for the Saints” (1 Cor. 16:1)
107 Rosemary W. Mbogo  Financial Sustainability in Ministry
123 Rodney Reed  Giving to Caesar What is Caesar’s: The Ethics of Paying Taxes from a Christian Perspective, Part One: The Bible
147 Andrew G. Wildsmith  The Ideal Life, Jesus, and Prosperity Theology
165 Book Reviews
175 Books Received

ISSN 1026-2946
Africa Journal of Evangelical Theology
© Scott Christian University

Consulting Editors:
Dr. Paul Bowers, Managing Editor, BookNotes for Africa
Prof. James Kombo, DVCAA, Daystar University, Nairobi
Prof. Samuel M. Ngewa,
    Professor of Biblical Studies, African International University (AIU)
Dr. Richard Gehman, Former Editor of AJET
Dr. Gregg Okesson, Dean of the E Stanley Jones School of World Evangelism, Asbury Theological Seminary, Wilmore, Kentucky

Editorial Committee:
Prof. Paul Mumo Kisau, Publisher, Vice-Chancellor, Scott Christian University
Dr. Andrew G. Wildsmith, Editor, Lecturer, Scott Christian University
Dr. Benjamin Musyoka, DVC for Academic Affairs, Scott Christian University
Dr. Bernard Nzioka, Director of Quality Assurance, Scott Christian University
Dr. Jamie Viands, Dean, School of Theology, Scott Christian University

Subscription Services: Email: ajetjournal@scott.ac.ke.

Subscription Information: Subscription rates and ordering procedures are published on the inside back cover. Information can be downloaded from our website: www.scott.ac.ke. Or email: ajetjournal@scott.ac.ke

Purpose: AJET is published twice a year by Scott Christian University, a chartered private university in Kenya, in order to provide theological educators and students with evangelical articles and book reviews related to Christian ministry in Africa.

Publisher: Scott Christian University, the publisher of AJET, has been accredited by ACTEA since 1979 and was chartered as a private university by Scott Christian University now has three schools operating under its umbrella:
the School of Theology (formerly Scott Theological College), the School of Education and the School of Professional Studies.

AJET is indexed in Christian Periodical Index; New Testament Abstracts
(Cambridge MA); Religion Index One: Periodicals, published by the American Theological Library Association, Chicago; Theology in Context (Institute of Missiology, Germany); and in DIALOG Abstracts (Cambridge MA). AJET is indexed in the ATLA Religion Database, published by the American Theological Library Association, 300 S. Wacker Dr., Suite 2100, Chicago, IL
60606, E-mail: atla@atla.com, Website: http://www.atla.com/.

AJET is now on-line at: http://www.biblicalstudies.org.uk/articles_ajet-03.php
The Magic of Money and Ministry

The articles in this issue of AJET come from amongst the papers prepared for the March 1st, 2014 annual meeting of the Africa Society of Evangelical Theology (ASET) held at Africa International University. The theme of the meeting was “Ministry and Money”.

Gift Mtukwa, in A Reconsideration of Self-Support in Light of Paul’s “Collection for the Saints” (1 Cor. 16:1), concludes that when Venn’s self-supporting church ideal results in isolated self-reliance, then it must give way to mutual interdependence because different churches in different parts of the world need one another in different ways at different times in their spiritual and material development.

Rosemary Mbogo tackles Financial Sustainability in Ministry, and uses Christian Higher Education Institutions in Kenya as an example of financial non-sustainability. We may ask, “If financial sustainability is defined as the ability to develop programmes and delivery systems that meet the physical, social and spiritual needs of a given context, with consistent financial resources raised by each constituency, independent of special and/or occasional hoped-for donations from external sponsors and well wishers, then is it even possible for Christian institutions to achieve financial sustainability, despite their efforts to develop self-reliance through various income-generating schemes? Given the call for mutual interdependence, should they even try?

Rodney Reed’s Giving to Caesar What is Caesar’s: The Ethics of Paying Taxes from a Christian Perspective (Part One: The Bible) focuses on the question, “When is it a moral obligation for a Christian to pay taxes and when is it not?” from a Biblical perspective. When is my money is mine, God’s, or the government’s – and when is it not?

My own article, The Ideal Life, Jesus, and Prosperity Theology, engages the new/old enemy, the Health and Wealth Gospel, from a different direction by comparing its version of the ideal life with that of OT Israel, the ancient Canaanites, modern Western secularism, and with Jesus’ attitude towards the good things of this life. Guess who wins from a heavenly point of view!

From an earthly point of view money is like magic, making inconvenient truths disappear and solving problems with a wave of the wallet. Of course, it can’t buy you real love, but for love’s sinful substitute and for everything else – there’s Mastercard. Money is like a universal solvent, dissolving marriages, morals, friendships, families, churches and communities and much, much more. Money itself is not evil, but a wise man claimed, “the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil” (1 Tim. 6:10). A little earlier a wiser man said, “No one can serve two masters. Either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and Money” (Mt. 6:24; Lk. 16:13). You can have ministry without the love of money, but you can’t have both a love of money and a truly Christian ministry.