Early Baptists in Leicestershire and Rutland

(II) ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS: COMMONWEALTH AND RESTORATION, 1650-1661

(i) Schism and debate at Earl Shilton, 1650, as described by Nathaniel Stephens, A Precept for the Baptisme of Infants, (London: 1650/1), Epistle to the Reader.¹

"Many people among us, and some of good hope, have been drawen aside to follow the way of the separation. . . . I could not but rise, and look after such neighbours and friends of mine, who (in my apprehension at least) were as sheep gone astray. Therefore about the end of January last, I took occasion to go to Earles-Shilton . . . where the Masters of Division have played their principall game: My purpose was by conference with them to know the reasons of their departure from us. When a competent number of that way were gathered togethered, some pleaded errors in our Doctrine, others corruptions in our Ministery, a third sort faulted our Churches constitution. But in conclusion of that days discourse, I found that the point which they did bind very much upon, was this; That there was no word of command for the Baptisme of Infants in the New Testament. I found that this principally moved them to renounce the old, and to take up a new Baptisme; to leave the old, and to joyn themselves to a new Church. Hereupon I told them, that however others look to the ancient use of the Church in the Baptisme of Infants, I was perswaded that there was a word of institution: and had I time more fully to study the point, I hoped I should make it appear. They desired me to take time; and our agreement was that before my next coming I should give them a weeks warning: which I did accordingly, and appointed the 27th of March for the particular day of our conference. I desired that some of their more solid and principal men would be there, for the tryal of truth: and this I signified by letter a week before. But when I came, I did not find the men I looked for. Whether they were absent on set purpose, or whether there was a real cause of their absence, I cannot tell. Therefore I did publickly, according to that light I had, Preach a Precept for the Baptism of Infants before the People: and when I had done, I did leave one brief Argument behind me in writing, for the freinds of the separation to consider of. Since that time I acknowledge that I have received two answers, the one upon the first of May, and the other upon the fifth of September. And I could wish that the last Answerer (which was one Mr. Robert Everard) had not been so hastie to put his Answer in Print: but rather that he and I had gone on in the way we were in, to try the matter by writing each to other . . . His way of life being itinerary from place to place, it is a question whether such a narrow and set disquisition of truth would not have fixed him too long to one place; or whether . . . he did inwardly believe that he had given a totall rout to the Baptisme of Infants: or whether it were to ease his own shoulders of the burden, and to call in more of the party to his assistance. . . . I am not now to deal with this or that particular man, but with the whole nation of them that are against a Precept for the Baptisme of Infants: And this I take to be no small number. For I believe the piety of former times . . . was not greater to set up high altars than it is now to divide into new Churches. And therefore to a man who maketh it one of his chief designes to set up a new Church, to erect a new Ministery, and to cast all into a new mould, what better principle can he have to begin withall than a new Baptisme? . . .

(iii) A petition to Cromwell, warning him of the danger of success, and appealing for a thorough reform of public life, 1 February 1651/2.¹⁸

"Feb. 1, 1651.
RIGHT HONOURABLE,
The consideration of the wonderfull hand of God, that hath so visibely and eminentely beeene lifted up amongst us (both to the admiration of his people and astonishment of the world) in bringing downe the proude and haughty ones, making them to drinke the wine of the cup of his furey, staineing the pride of all ther glory and pouring shame, judgment, and contempt upon them; together with the mighty salvation that hath beeene wraught for his oppressed and afflicted ones, who for thes many generations have sadly groned under there heavy yoakes and oppressions, yea the consideration and experimentall sence hearof, with the designe of the Lord is carying on hereby (even the exaltation of the kingdom of his own Son), cannot but in the first place draw out the acknowledgment of our soules to his prayse, who hath so admirabley begun, and so powerfully carryed it on hitherto, and in the next place to bless his name for you as the happy instruments he hath raysed up, owned and honored therin, and so that you have not only beeene as our valiant Joshuas in the field (wher no weapon that hath beeene formed against you hath prospered, neither have the men of might att any time beeene able to finde ther hands) but you have also at home beeene as faithfull Nehemiahs to pleade the freedoms of your brethren whom you have redeemed, even to the rebuking of the rulers who have opprest them, and not walked in the feare of the Lord.

And therefore the Lord, by whose appointment you have hitherto acted, may still owne, and use you in the further prosecution of this greate worke begun (which must as certainly bee carried on even till the top stone be finished;) wee, the unworthiest of the Lord's people, have in the sincerity of our heartes presumed to lay before you what the Lord hath sett upon our spirits in relation hearto; and the rather are we imboldened and incuradged hearto, knowing the freedom of your spirites, to give eare to what may bee offered from the meanest of the Lord's servants.

In the first place therefore, wee do beseech you in the feare of the Lord, that you who have done so mightily in overcoming the proudest of your enemyes, may now beware of being overcome by your selves; and that you would consider, that having played the men in the field, you are now called to higher worke, even to deny yourselves your weapons and worke, being to be of a more spirituall nature, if you will follow the Lamb whersoever he goeth. Beware therfore of seeking high or great things for yourselves, being so odious and ill-becoming others in your sight; make no provision for the flesh, neither consult therewith, or carnall politicke reasonings, that having cleared your owne eyes you my bee more able with cleerness to behold and to pull out the motes that are in others.

And secondly, that you would please often (as wee trust you do) to consult with the Lord and one another about your present duties in this work you are engaged in, that you may bee found like the men of Issacher, who had understanding of the times to know what Israel ought to do; that having a prize put into your hands, you may not want hearts to improve it; least if at such times you should altogether hold your peace, deliverance and enlargement arise some other way.

And thirdly to have much before your eyes, the many burdens and grievances yet unremoved, and the many good things yet obstructed, together with your many promises and engagements before the Lord and his people, to endeavour the effecting thereof; as also who the obstructers are, so that if any publicke instruments (as formerly) do either through self-seeking, ignorance, or corruption remain as lions in the way, that you would by all good ways and means endeavour their discovery and removal, in order to a thorough reformation; the prize of all the blood and treasure that hath been amongst us. Go on therefor and prosper, and that you may not want either wisdom, or the continuance of the spirit of God to guide you therein, you may be confident that (through grace) you shall not want the assistance of our prayers, who, in the name of these several congregations of Christ, have presumed to tender these things to your serious consideration, subscribing ourselves,

(iv) Letter from Colonel Hacker and Captain Shield to Cromwell about seditious literature in Rutland, 1656.\(^{26}\)

“May it please your highnesse
There hath beene lately sent into our county a packet of scandalous and seditious booke directed to one mrs. Smyth a grocer’s wife in Uppingham, and was by her to bee dispersed with care and speed to the severall persons, according to the directions and superscriptions here inclosed; which shee haveing done, one of the partyes brought one to colonel Hacker, wherewith hee acquainted captain Shield and the rest of the justices at a publique meeting that day, and upon consultation capitaine Shield ordered the apprehending by a party of his soldiers some suspitious persons, which was strangers in our countrey; upon which wee conceive some suspition was, that the books was discovered, and the several packetts was sent in to capitaine Shield the next day; and as it may appeare by the superscriptions inclosed, all the persons, to whom the directions was, are anabaptists or separatists. Upon our examination and viewe of the superscriptions, one Anger, being likewise an anabaptist, as we are informed, whoe was lately of the life-guard, as they confesse, wee judge suspitious in this matter, who lately lived in the upper end of King’s street, but nowe removed, as we find by a letter of his owne, to the great Goate-yard at the upper end of Horsey-downe in Southwark, beyond London-bridge. This being all wee can find, wee thought it our duty to signifie it to your highnes, and to subscribe our selves

Received April 21, 1656.
Your highnes humble servants,
Fran. Hacker
Will. Shield.”

(v) Decisions about messengers made at Stamford, and reported from Peterborough to Fenstanton, 1656.\(^{27}\)

“To the church of Christ at Fenystanton, we, the church of Christ at Peterborough, send greeting; wishing grace, mercy, and peace, to be multiplied unto you.

Brethren, this is to acquaint you with the proceedings of our friends at Stamford, the 2nd and 3rd of July, 1656. The things that are agreed upon by the messengers and brethren, are as followeth: —

First, That two messengers be sent into the west, for the work of the ministry.
Secondly, That our beloved brethren, John Fairbrother, and Will. Reignolds, be sent to the said work.

Thirdly, That the church shall defray the charge of the messengers and their families. And these are the names of the persons that did engage for the societies hereafter named:

Will. Inge and Tho. Christian for Leicester, and to stir up Earl Shilton and Mount Sorrell;

John Kirby for Nottingham and to stir up Winford and Rimson;

Isaac Spence and Christo. Bell for Peterborough, and to stir up Wisbeach and Fenystanton;

Benjamin Morley and Francis Stanley for Ravensthorpe, and to stir up Newton, and as many as they can;

George More for Whitwell and Markfield, and to stir up Twyford;

John Wilkinson to stir up Langtoft, Thurlby, and Bitome.

Fourthly, That Cristo. Bell, Isaac Spence, and John Wilkinson shall take care of sister Reignolds, to visit her in her husband’s absence; also that Benjamin Morley and Francis Stanley shall take care of sister Fairbrother, to visit her in her husband’s absence.

Fifthly, That the brethren that meet at Uppingham be sent unto, to certify them that, according to bro. Ainsworth’s desire, we have sent two messengers into the west . . .

Sixthly, That the church of Christ be exhorted to make prayers for our beloved brethren aforesaid; that the work of the Lord may prosper in their hands.

Seventhly, That the messengers aforesaid shall go forth speedily to the work.

Eighthly, That our beloved brethren aforesaid shall have ten shillings a week for themselves and their families.

Ninthly, We desired several parties of our friends to go to end the differences in general societies, and to use the utmost of their abilities for the making them up again, and to settle them in peace and truth . . .

Your brethren and companions in the Lord,

John Dargen, Isaac Spence, Christo. Bell, with the consent of the brethren. From Peterborough, the 18th day of the sixth month, 1656.

. . . It was concluded that, for the present, we should not do anything in the business, . . .

First, Because no man can tell by this way of proceeding, whether little or much would be gathered in Secondly, Because one of the messengers was adjudged unfit for that work, he being formerly one that fell from the truth, and joined with those wicked people called Ranters . . .”

(vi) A Further Testimony to Truth. An appeal for thorough reform made to the Army officers who in October 1659 replaced Parliament, five months after Richard Cromwell's death.

“A further Testimony to Truth; or, some Earnest Groans for a Righteous Settlement, in this hour of distraction, agreeable to the late Essay, so suitably offered by some Friends and Brethren, to this purpose: By some Baptized Congregations, and other Cordial Lovers and Assertors of the Publick Good Old Cause, in the Counties of Leicester, Nottingham, Rutland, Lincoln, Stafford, Darby, and Shropshire.

To all that bear good will to Zion, and love the Lord Jesus, that have either power, opportunity, or hearts to appear for Him, and his Righteous Cause, in this Day. [“1659” added in manuscript.]

That in sense of the late eminent and wonderful appearance of the Lord, who hath pleased not only thereby to work out so miraculous a salvation and deliverance for a poor scattered and divided handful of his unworthy people, from the rage and malice of a potent, united, and enraged enemy, that like Bees on every side rose up against them.

But more especially, and that which is more worth than thousands of our Lives and Liberties, has he given such good hopes (by his still continued Revolutions and Over-turnings) of reviving his blessed Cause again in the midst of us, after so many years death upon it; viz. The Exaltation of the Kingdom and Interest of Jesus Christ, the glorious King of Saints and Nations, in the promised reiue and downfall of the Tyrannous, Beastly, and Antichristian Interest, which for so many hundred years has so bloudily domineer'd in the earth.

We therefore having our hearts somewhat warmed and affected herewith, seeing as yet so little improvement of the opportunity once more offered, do take our selves concerned, with others of our dear Brethren that have gone before us herein, to be pleading and crying out for those things which the Lords late Voice seems loudly to call for at our hands.

And first; we desire in sense of his great goodness, (and as we would be serviceable to the Lord in his great designs on foot) earnestly to stir up our selves, and all the Lords people that are any way toucht with his late gracious Appearance, to a speedy, thorough, and serious search, how far any have had heart or hand in the late Dreadful Revolt and turning aside from the Lord in that fearful Apostacy, by setting up, standing by, or flatteringly addressing to either of those two persons, or others, that in opposition to the Work and Cause of God, has in chief been set over us, occasioning so much Atheisme, Reproach, and Blasphemy: And that as any may be justly chargeable herewith, that there be accordingly a hearty return to the Lord, by a suitable repentance, taking the shame, and giving God the glory.

Secondly, that since the Lord has been pleased once again, by his distinguishing Providence, upon the late decision, to make a visible separation betwixt friends and enemies; (and so far to unravel the Apostacy, whose chief work it was to twist all Interests together, as though Christ and Antichrist were to be united) that in order to common preservation and protection, and the securing our beings, all speedy and lawful ways may be taken for the incorporating, uniting, and impowering all known friends; the discountenancing, weakening, and outing all known enemies.

And thirdly, we do, as in conscience bound, cry out for some speedy exemplary Justice and punishment upon the heads of all sorts that had their hands in the late Treason and Rebellion, that occasioned the expence of that Blood and Treasure, and gave such general disturbance throughout these three Nations.

And fourthly, in order to our well-being, and carrying on a thorough Reformation so long groaned after, and bled for, we loudly call out for that holy, equal, brief, and plain Law given by God in the Scriptures, to be declared Law of these Nations, in opposition to the heathenish, tyrannous, and Popish Laws yet in force amongst us: And that men that are best read, and practised, and most answering the qualifications of Magistrates, according to Scripture-Rule, viz. men of courage, fearing God, and hating covetousness, may be only implo'yd (as near as possible) to dispence and execute under Christ this righteous Rule, in opposition to the ignorant, prophane, and scandalous; that so also some speedy course may be taken to suppress that dilatory, vexatious, and oppressive way, that has so long been exercis'yd by the mercenary, cruel, and covetous Lawyers, the shame of our Nation, and so utterly (in their corrupt course of practise) inconsistent to a Commonwealth.

Fifthly, that as the most effectual way to suppress and remove the Antichristian Ministry, (who have been such Ring-leaders in this late Rebellion;) and so consequently to promote and propagate the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and the New-Testament-Ministration thereof: First, we claim, that the imposition of that Jewish and Antichristian yoke of Tythes be removed: And the rather;

First, Because we find neither Law of God, nor by his Providence any from man, at this day, to inforce the same.

Secondly, Because of late there has been that light, that strength of Reason and Argument offered to publike view, both from the Laws of God and Man, that none has been able to stand before, or rationally to reply unto: See Milton, Pierson, Osburn, &c.

And secondly, that as an intolerable burden, inconsistent with the Liberty of Conscience unto all, the Rulers forbear for ever to impose any National or Parochial Ministery, so as to inforce any form of Worship suited to their interest, or compel men of one perswasion, to maintain any man of another in the Ministry, or to lay a stumbling-block in the way of unbelievers, to the derogation of Christ, by compelling them to maintain his Ministers.

And lastly, the better to make all this practicable, and to remove all lets out of the way, we do most earnestly beg and cry aloud for a speedy and effectual applying the Rule laid down by the late Rulers, so agreeable to the Word of God, to all Officers in Publike Trust, both Civil and Military, throughout the Nation, which we herewith insert, wishing it may be writ in Letters of Gold, for every one to take notice of, that he that runs may read; viz. That Declaration of the ninth of May, 1659. That all such as shall be in any place of Trust and Power within this Commonwealth, be able for the discharge of such Trust, and that they be persons fearing God, that have given testimony of their true love to all the people of God, and of their faithfulness to the Cause of this Commonwealth. And that all such as answer not this wholesome Rule, (thus by Gods Providence own'd, laid down, and asserted, as the qualification to Magistracy and Trust) be speedily removed all places of Authority and Trust, and others be forthwith still called, answering the same; that our enemies be not our Judges, nor rule over us: And that there may be a Publike Liberty to charge; and that it may be penal for any to continue, that are found unanswerable thereto.

Attested and subscribed in the Name, and by the appointment of the respective Congregations under-written, viz.

An Assent also hereunto has been given by the Warwickshire Churches, whose subscriptions, through some miscarriage, came not timely to hand.
This testimony was intended before the late Change, though not unseasonable (as we judge) to be now publish'd; trusting these great and astonishing Revolutions will but make the more way for the accomplishment of our just desires herein. Hoping the chief Instruments hereof, will now be the more ingag'd heartily to return to the Lord, and to prosecute their former Resolutions and Engagements to Christ herein (in the day of their straights: if not, we shall again inminde them of that seasonable Word, so lately laid before them, Num. 32.23. And that if [copy mutilated] some other way, &c. Est. 4.14. 1659

Nichols' copy concluded: "A Claim for Christ; exhibited to a Committee of the Officers of the Army the 15th day of the eighth month, 1659, by divers Well-wishers to the Cause."

(vii) Letters reporting Baptist sedition in Leicestershire at the time of Venner's Fifth Monarchy revolt, January 1660/1.

Richard Orton to Lord Loughborough, Lord Lieutenant of Leicestershire (in London): 10

"1660, Jan. 15. Peatelinge.

"On the alarum we repaired to Leicester where was a very free and speedy appearance of the gentry and others, and many more were coming but, being informed that it was false, returned. We secured some few persons of dangerous principles and known disaffection to his Majesty and seized the arms of several fanatics. Being informed last night of many Anabaptists (whereof several had been in arms and some in command under Lambert) flocking to Earleshilton, we sent a small party of horse with power to seize their arms and bring their persons to Leicester this day, where several of the justices will be with the rest of the commissioners about the six months' assessment. I hope we have not erred, but we could not gain the company of a justice to stay with us."

Postscript: "Several persons near Melton were upon their guard, as also at Belvoir Castle. Sir William Hartoppe went thither in haste with his lady."

The Mayor and Aldermen of Leicester to Lord Loughborough: 41

"1660, Jan. 20. Leicester.

"... There have heretofore been many meetings of fanatics in this Town (that came from several towns in this county) at some houses of their party. Some of the Chief of them were secured upon the first rumour of the late troubles, but since the King's proclamation we cannot find that they have had any meetings although we have made strict searches. We have some few in prison for refusing the Oath of Allegiance, but they are very inconsiderable persons and so we conceive their party in this town and county would have been if their wicked design had proceeded."
(viii) Letter from Charles Twickton of Empingham to Abel Barker, High Sheriff of Rutland, concerning dangerous Baptist meetings, 25 April 1661.42

"Honoured Sir

My best Respects salute you. I am bold to trouble you with a line or two to certify you that yesterday meeting Sir Richard Wingfield hee Commanded mee to write to your Worship or to Sir Thomas Hartoppe, that you our honoured Justices would bee pleased to send a warrant from ye Sessions to Day to Empingham for a strict keeping of ye night watch, and for ye suppressing of Anabaptisticall Meeting. For hee is Informed that ye Connnstables are negligent in their Duty, and the other too Diligent, and frequent in Convencening. If your Worships please to send a warrant to mee I shall Carry it to Sir Richard (as hee has enjoyn'd mee) to signe it. Thus I rest your very servant from Empingham

April ye 25 Charles Twickton"

1 Nathaniel Stephens, A Precept for the Baptisme of Infants Out of the New Testament. Where the Matter is First proved from three several Scriptures, that there is such a word of command. Secondly it is vindicated, as from the exceptions of the Separation, so in special from the Cavils ut Mr. Robert Everard in a late Treatise of his intituled Baby-Baptisme routed, London: January 1650/1. Copy consulted in the Angus Library, Oxford, I.c.11 (f).

These are given on their own in varying detail in J. H. Wood, A Condensed History of the General Baptists of the New Connexion, London: 1847, pp. 118 ff., and in Baptist Quarterly, vol. II, pp. 246 ff., neither of which quite agrees with the copy of this Confession in the Angus Library, 2.g.9 (4).

Probably Shugborough, 44 miles east of Stafford.

There are possible localities near Stafford, Lichfield, and Stone. As Henry Haggard, the baptizer of Henry Danvers at Stafford, is linked with this church in 1659, Berryhill is most probably the hamlet at Berry Ring, a hill fort only one mile from Stafford Castle.

Parwich is five miles north of Ashbourne.

The only known copy of this broadside is in a bound volume of miscellaneous printed materials in the Massachusetts Historical Society Library, Boston, U.S.A., to whose librarian I am indebted for a xerox copy. It is recorded in H. Dexter’s Bibliography as no. 105, and Dexter’s information was simply copied into Whiteley’s Baptist Bibliography as item 99-659. Appearing immediately after an item by H. Wollrich, it is erroneously attributed to him by V. C. H. Leicestershire, vol. IV, p. 190. J. Nichols, The History and Antiquities of the County of Leicester, London: 1804, vol. III, part 11, pp. 893 f., had seen a copy with a different conclusion, and bound with similar pamphlets from London and the Abingdon Association.
