Daniel Potts, British Baptist Missionaries in India, 1967, pp.17, 21, who also quotes Carey on the need for women missionaries, as early as 1796: 'to communicate the gospel ... in a situation where superstition secludes all women of respectability from hearing the word unless from their own sex'. The only response to this was the sending out with Dr William Johns in 1810-2 of a Miss Chaffin 'to whom apparently belongs the honour of being the first missionary nurse'. But Carey records of her that 'although an excellent woman' she was not 'of any use to the Mission' (pp.38, 65). Anon, Baptist Zenana Mission Jubilee 1867-1917, 1917; E. A.
