necessity of the struggle for life, or the Good Samaritan would have left the wounded traveller to take his chance upon the highway.

E. K. KENDALL, D.C.L

---

Short Notices.

This work, as one would expect, is truly suggestive. It will repay reading, and lead many to profitable study. The subject, it appears, has long occupied the author's mind. He was led to it many years ago by noticing the four differing Names of God in the opening of the ninety-first Psalm:

He that dwelleth in the secret place of the MOST HIGH shall abide under the shadow of the ALMIGHTY. I will say of the LORD (Jehovah), He is my refuge and my fortress; my GOD (Elohim), in Him will I trust.

This volume contains a good deal that is worth reading; but some of the papers are dry. The sermon sketches are made partly from published sermons: Liddon, Pusey, and Manning have been utilized.

The Discipline of Life. By the Rev. REGINALD G. DUTTON, M.A.

A preface to this posthumous work has been contributed by Canon Legge; and what he tells us about the author adds much to the interest of these "last words of counsel." Reginald Dutton, from the time that he was an undergraduate at Cambridge, and had associated himself there with the Christian efforts which have for many years past drawn together so many young men, threw himself into the evangelistic work of the Church, whether as a layman at Portsea, or as a clergyman in Lambeth, in Lewisham, and in London. He caught a fever in the course of parochial visitation amongst the crowded back-streets of a London parish, and after a few days' illness, calm and firm in the faith, he sank quietly to rest. The book is spiritual and suggestive.

We have pleasure in inviting attention to Part I. of the "Penny Library" series, viz., Strange Scenes, by the Rev. James Neil, M.A., well known as the Author of "Palestine Explored," containing 40 original illustrations of Joppa and Jerusalem. The first edition of sixty thousand (Woodford Fawcett, and Co., Dorset Works, Salisbury Square) will prove, it may be hoped, the beginning of a worthily large circulation.

A new and cheaper edition of that admirable book, Among the Mongols, is very welcome, and will do a great deal of good (Religious Tract Society). Mr. Gilmour's detailed descriptions have well been compared to Daniel Defoe's. One type of Missionary work—and that a very interesting one—is, so to say, photographed. Mr. Gilmour is now living among his Mongol friends.

The Archbishop of York's Sermon, preached at the close of the Lambeth Conference, has been published, we are glad to see, by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge: "The Manifestation of the Sons of God."

 Other Notices are unavoidably postponed.