The Rev. J. E. C. WELLDON, M.A.

(Head-Master of Harrow School, and Bishop-Designate of Calcutta),

Speaking at the last Annual Meeting of the Religious Tract Society, said :

“Whatever may be the features of pernicious literature, there is, in my judgment, only one way of meeting it, and that is to meet bad literature by good. You may talk against bad literature, and I am afraid you will not have much effect ; you may preach against it without much effect, for the great difficulty of preaching is that the people who hear sermons are not those who most need to hear them. But if wherever there is bad literature you spread good literature of such a kind that it is as interesting and attractive as the bad literature, then the battle is won, or, at least, it is half won. That is the work of this Society. If I may sum it up, it is to Christianize literature, it is to produce and to circulate literature which may, as the Secretary said, keep abreast of the times, which may, at all events, drive out in a large measure the literature of evil and of sin by its own innate superiority. No nobler, no more valuable, service can be rendered to a community than this. If the evil literature to which I have referred deserves reprobation and condemnation anywhere, it deserves it most of all among the young. I know something, by my profession, of the young, and I know there is a literature which in its nature is designed and intended to pervert the imagination of boys and even of girls. To spread such literature is to poison the wells of society. That literature is one of the greatest curses of the age. It is most difficult to fight against. It finds its way where it can hardly be expected or suspected, and I can say of my own experience that sometimes its horrible effect is produced upon the minds of young people who, when they first begin to read it, have no idea of what they are reading. Because that literature is so pernicious, and because it is the object of this Society to counteract it, I for one, as at present occupied in the teaching of the young, would render it my heartfelt thanks.”

THE
Growth and Influence of Music in Relation to Civilization.

By HENRY TIPPER.

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

---

“The art of music is in itself so absorbing that its votaries, as a rule, trouble themselves little about the ‘moral influence it has exerted, and the ideal forces of which it is the exponent.’ The aim, therefore, of the work under notice is an excellent one. A study of the art from such standpoints is welcome.”—Athenæum.

“Mr. Tipper treats his interesting subject with sympathy and ingenuity. There are some suggestive examples of how music has answered the need and expressed the emotion of the moment.”—Christian World.

“His sketches of what we may call the musical history of the world, and his monographs of the great composers, are skilful pieces of literary work. Of course in a book of this kind the monographs are necessarily brief, but they are like the fine miniatures of a sister art conveying to our minds beautiful impressions of the features of the persons they represent. Lovers of music will be charmed with this compendious story.”—Baptist.

“A very interesting volume. In a sense a rapid survey of the history of the development of the art, it brings into prominence the important part which music has played in its mission to exalt and ennoble mankind.”—Orchestral Association Gazette.

“This admirable well-written work is sure to interest every lover of music.”—Bristol Mercury.

“An interesting bird’s-eye view of the history of modern music.”—Yorkshire Post.

“The idea of the book is admirable. As an introduction to the study of the subject, Mr. Tipper’s work is worthy of high commendation.”—Dundee Advertiser.

“A very welcome volume. It gives a very clear and succinct narrative of the development of the musical art.”—Aberdeen Free Press.

“The beauty and charity of its diction, and the admirable consistency with which its purpose is sustained throughout, entitle it to a ready response from all who desire to possess the essence of a large subject in a small compass.”—Manchester Guardian.

“Musicians of every grade will find much original reflection, evincing culture, and a certain capacity for accurate generalization, and we therefore have no hesitation in pronouncing the book worth reading.”—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

“Furnishes a blameless record of the progress of musical art.”—Leeds Mercury.

“The book is one which treats of musical history ably, and by setting it in its place among the other arts, makes it less of a thing apart than it appears to be in some of the drier textbooks.”—Scotsman.

BEFORE SIXTY YEARS AGO.

The special claims of the SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING FEMALE EDUCATION
 IN THE EAST to recognition are:

- (1) That it was the only Society for both Zenana work and School work existing in the Empire at the time of the Queen's Accession.
- (2) That it was then already carrying on Zenana work, Harem work, and School work, in China, the Straits, Egypt, and India.
- (3) That it was the pioneer of all subsequent efforts in Zenana and Harem work, for which it prepared the way, by encountering and, to a certain extent overcoming, the greatest initial difficulties.
- (4) That it still occupies a wider sphere than any kindred Society in existence.
- (5) That by the help of God it has continued steadfast unto this day "in the Apostles' doctrine," and in the work of sending the Gospel to the heathen women and girls of the East.

The Committee urge these claims, and appeal for help to their Commemoration Fund, to enable them to strengthen and extend the work of the Society.

Secretary, Miss WEBB, 267, Vauxhall Bridge Road, S.W.
