BIBLICAL AND THEOLOGICAL.

UNIVERSAL BIBLE DICTIONARY, THE. Edited by the Rev. A. R. Buckland, M.A., assisted by the Rev. Canon Lukyn Williams, D.D. (Religious Tract Society. 3s. 6d. net.) A monumental work of marvellous cheapness. It is for those—students and readers—who cannot afford the more costly works, and yet desire to avail themselves of the results of the best modern scholarship. It has this further advantage, that on questions of criticism its leaning is conservative. There are about 4,500 articles, some of them (e.g., those on Justification, the Trinity, etc.) of considerable length. The volume meets a popular need.

RESTATEMENT AND REUNION. By Burnett Hillman Streeter. (Macmillan and Co., Ltd. 2s. 6d. net.) Second impression of a volume reviewed on p. 711.

TRUE MYSTIC, THE. By Holden E. Sampson. (William Rider and Sons, Ltd. 2s. 6d. net.) Described as "in the nature of a textbook to the subject which he has already treated more exhaustively in his larger works, 'Progressive Creation' and 'Progressive Redemption.'"

FAITH OF A CHRISTIAN MYSTIC, THE. By the Rev. T. Wilkinson Riddle. (Marshall Brothers, Ltd. 2s. 6d. net.) "An essay on the science of the inward life," consisting of four parts, in which the genius, sanction, value and practice of mysticism are respectively described. The volume is truly Christian in the best sense of the word.

PHILOSOPHY OF FAITH, THE. By Bertram Brewster. (Longmans, Green and Co. 3s. 6d. net.)

OBJECT OF THE BIBLE, THE. By the Rev. Edward F. Wilson. (Elliot Stock. 2s. 6d. net.) "If once it is generally accepted and believed in," says the writer, "that we, the English-speaking race, are indeed the children of Abraham, the true descendants of Abraham, lost to the world and lost to our brethren, the Jews, for many, many centuries, but now recovered, restored, made known—why, the Bible becomes at once our Bible. The prophecies which we had thought had only to do with the descendants of Abraham, we find have to do with us."

BAPTISM. By Philip Mauro. (Morgan and Scott, Ltd. 1s. 6d. net.) Deals with the "place and importance" of baptism in Christianity; and has a letter concerning "household baptism."

HOMILETICAL AND DEVOTIONAL.

SACKVILLE COLLEGE SERMONS. By John Mason Neale, D.D. (H. R. Allenson, Ltd. 2s. 6d. net.) A réissue of the sermons of a great preacher, for the season Trinity to Advent. Dr. Neale's doctrinal position was not ours, but we have read several of these sermons with great interest. They are as helpful in exposition as they are practical in application.

NEVER AND ALWAYS. By E. B. Wilson. (Marshall Brothers, Ltd. 1s. net.) An odd title, but a valuable book. "Never worry—always trust"; "never murmur—always rejoice"—and so on. There are thoughts here which will help every Christian, bringing peace, which is the true secret of progress.

DAILY SERVICES FOR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. By the Rev. H. Pakenham-Walsh, D.D. (Longmans, Green and Co. 2s. net.) A carefully compiled volume, the result of wide experience, and many schools and colleges will find it exactly meets their need.

SECRET OF INTERCESSION, THE. By the Rev. Andrew Murray, D.D. (Morgan and Scott, Ltd. 1s. net.) A "pocket companion" designed to foster and stimulate the spirit of true prayer. Dr. Andrew Murray is a prince among devotional writers.

CHURCH HISTORY.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND AND EPISCOPACY, THE. By the Rev. Canon A. J. Mason, D.D. (Cambridge University Press. 10s. 6d. net.) A collection or catena of passages from Anglican writers, from the Reformation to the Catholic Revival of the nineteenth century, designed to show their views on the origin, the sanction, and the obligation of episcopacy. It is a remarkable collection, presented with rare skill, and showing, or endeavouring to show, "both sides of the question." But Canon Mason frankly says he does "not profess to be impartial," and admits that his own view is that

"to tamper with episcopacy would be to throw away all that is most distinctive in the character and prospects of the Church of England." His attitude, therefore, gives to this monumental work something of the character of a brief, and to this extent its utility is impaired.

BIOGRAPHY.

AUTHOR OF "THE SPANISH BROTHERS," THE. By Elizabeth Boyd Bayly. (Marshall Brothers, Ltd. 6s.) The subject of this Memoir, Deborah Alcock, is spoken of by the Bishop of Durham as the "holder of golden talents" and the "faithful user of them" for the Lord. "The Spanish Brothers" was by no means her only notable work. Miss Bayly, who writes with affectionate sympathy, has given us a memoir for which we may well be thankful.

SECRETS OF SUCCESS IN LIFE, THE. By the Editor of The Young Man. (Williams and Norgate. 1s. net.) A sane, sound, and robust appeal to the young manhood of the nation. Its counsels are wise and strong.
