A Farmer went out to sow his seed. As we was scattering the seed, some fell along the path, and the birds came and ate it up. Some fell on rocky places, where it did not have much soil. It sprang up quickly, because the soil was shallow. But when the sun came up, the plants were scorched, and they withered because they had no root. Other seed fell among thorns, which grew up and choked the plants. Still other seed fell on good soil, where it produced a crop – a hundred, sixty or thirty times what was sown. He who has ears, let him hear.

Foreword

In September 2012, I am surprised to learn of a YouTube production, “Kangnam Style” by a Korean pop artist, Psy, which is making a big hit all around the world. It seems that issues related to Korea and Korean people are becoming increasingly important in the global media world. Obviously we have much to learn from Korean voices and perspectives.

I am delighted to introduce the fifth issue in five years of our journal to the Korean and Korean-American churches and academic world. Previous issues numbers 1-4 can be downloaded free online at www.webKAM.org/journal. This year’s topic--“Bible”--begins with Hyun Chul Paul Kim’s valuable article on currents in Korean-American biblical interpretation. It is followed by two articles on the Hebrew Bible and two articles on New Testament interpretation. In Part 2 there are articles which survey recent biblical scholarship on Korean hermeneutics and methodologies followed by the introduction of new books published this year on the subjects of Korean and Asian churches, ministry, and theology.

I wish to thank the new helping hands and eagle eyes who have made this issue possible. A veteran missionary with over thirty years experience in Korean theological education, Dr. Daniel J. Adams, has joined the editorial team as co-editor and has contributed to making this issue very special and of high quality. I am extremely grateful to all the contributing writers who have make this “Bible” issue possible by introducing to the reader samples of Korean biblical theology which will undoubtedly stimulate further studies in the field.

Happy Choosuk (Korean Lunar Thanksgiving Holiday on September 30) to everyone!
