

THE
PALESTINE EXPLORATION FUND.

NOTES AND NEWS.

THE Committee are pleased to announce that the Archbishop of Canterbury has consented to act as President of the Fund. His Grace has written (through Canon Dalton):—"Most gladly do I accept the honourable position offered me of the Presidency of the Palestine Exploration Fund. I know its work, and I value it exceedingly."

Mr. James Glaisher, for some 20 years Chairman of the Executive Committee, died on the morning of February 7th, in his 94th year. He was buried at Shirley, about three miles from Croydon, on the 11th, and the funeral was attended by the present chairman, Major-General Sir Charles Wilson, and by the Honorary Secretary and the Acting Secretary. The Executive Committee sent a wreath of flowers, which was placed on the grave. A brief memoir will be found on another page.

The Committee are glad to be able to state that Mr. Macalister has resumed the work at Gezer, which was interrupted by the outbreak of cholera. Mr. Macalister is now engaged in clearing out the vicinity of the "high place," or temple.

The following letter has been addressed by Mr. Crace to the Editor of the Times :—

SIR,—In June last year you courteously allowed me to inform your readers that this Society was beginning the excavation of the site of the ancient Gezer, the "portion" given by Pharaoh to his daughter, Solomon's wife. The work was energetically carried on by Mr. Stewart Macalister, until stopped, late in the year, by the serious outbreak of cholera, which carried off many of the workers. But by that time the discoveries had amply justified the selection of the site. A pre-Israelite megalithic temple, evidences of infant sacrifice, and varied forms of sepulture of at least two early races of inhabitants were brought to light, besides large numbers of objects illustrating the several periods of occupation.

The work is now being taken up again on the removal of quarantine restrictions; and what I desire to impress on those interested is that, inasmuch as the Imperial iradé authorising the excavation is for two years only, the work must be pushed on very vigorously if it is to be completed in the time. The site covers a large area, and needs an extra large force of workpeople.

The Committee estimate that, to accomplish what is begun (within the given time), they will require about £2,000 more than is provided for by their regular subscribers. They therefore appeal to the public to assist them to that extent. Contributions should be sent to Mr. George Armstrong, at the offices of the Palestine Exploration Fund, 38, Conduit Street, W.

J. D. CRACE, Hon. Secretary.

The Committee have received the following special donations towards the sum of £2,000 which they are desirous of raising:—

The death of Sergeant Black, R.E., will be regretted by all who know what an important part he took in the survey of Palestine. Colonel Conder writes:—"He was selected from the Ordnance Survey to accompany Captain Stewart in 1872; and, that officer falling sick almost at once, while Mr. Tyrwhitt Drake went away on a visit to North Syria, Sergeant Black was left with only

Mr. Armstrong to carry on the work until my arrival. During these months excellent work was done, and I found the experience and high character of Sergeant Black of the greatest value. He was invalided home in 1875, after a most trying time in the south of Judæa. He again volunteered to accompany me in 1881, and was in Moab during the anxious months spent on the East Palestine Survey. He was eminently fitted, by his patience and prudence, to deal with Orientals, and his thoroughly conscientious pride in his work ensured the accuracy of the survey. He was also a highly educated man, and made many valuable suggestions in connection with Bible geography and antiquities. I had the pleasure, a few years ago, of writing to tell him of an unexpected test applied to the survey work, in connection with a very detailed Crusading account of the district round Bablân (Castellum Babalorum), at the foot of Carmel, which was entirely unknown when the region was surveyed, and which proved the completeness and accuracy of the map in this district, for which he was personally responsible. The letter which I received in reply showed the satisfaction with which he was able to look back on his work. Without such men the survey of Palestine would not have been what the public had a right to expect."

The following notes on the epidemic of cholera in 1902 are from a contribution by Dr. Masterman to Home Words for Jerusalem :—

"The Gaza district and all Southern Palestine received cholera through the overland route from Egypt viâ El Arish. Here, as is now well known, the 'cordon' was not strictly enforced, with disastrous results. Then either viâ Egypt, or, as seems probable, directly from Northern Arabia, the east of the Jordan was infected at the same time as, or perhaps earlier than, Gaza, and thence the disease spread northwards and north-west to the Jordan Valley. Ammân, where the Damascus-Mecca railhead now is, was the immediate centre whence the cholera attacked Tiberias and its district. Es-Salt and Jericho, and, lastly, in a manifest way by means of railway workmen from the railway, Damascus.

"The disease has, as is usual, been far more severe in the low lands than among the mountains. Thus, such places as Gaza, Jaffa, Lydda, and a great proportion of villages in the Plain of Sharon, villages near the Plain of Esdraelon, and places in the Jordan Valley, like Tiberias and Jericho, have suffered terribly, whereas Damascus, Nazareth, Safed, Nâblus, Jerusalem, and Hebron have suffered scarcely at all; in the case of most the only fatal cases being those of fugitives from other places.

“The mortality appears to have been of the kind typical in such epidemics. Beginning almost unnoticed, the numbers of deaths increase rapidly from week to week, reaching a maximum in four or five weeks, and then rapidly decline. This is characteristic of each place attacked. Thus the deaths at Gaza were, as far as is known, as follows:—September 20th, 60; 27th, 96; October 4th, 123; 11th, 226; 18th, 292; 27th, 830; November 1st, 513; 8th, 67; 15th, 45; 22nd, 22—total 2,274.

“The height of the epidemic in Gaza was the week in October; in Lydda a week later, and at Jaffa the middle of November. What the death-rate in the villages in the plains may have been it is impossible to guess. Two or three places where I have information may give some idea. In Abu Shushéh there are 30 new graves since the end of October; at Beit Jebrin 60 deaths are reported; at Jericho it is said 80 funerals have occurred, but many of these were from cases coming from east of the Jordan.

“Although the epidemic has fallen heavily on some towns and villages, others in close proximity have wonderfully escaped. Ramleh, for example, has been fortunate. With respect to the villages, I am informed that the inhabitants of Tell Zakariyeh were quite free from cholera, although many villages round were severely smitten.”

Mr. Hanauer, who has recently visited Hajla (Beth-hoglah), writes that the convent has been rebuilt, vineyards and gardens surround the Ain, but little is left of the frescoes in the chapels. Several changes also have taken place at Qarantel, particularly in front of the “Cave of the Temptation” (Matt. iv, 1). The inside of the cave has been redecorated. Mr. Hanauer utters a warning against too readily accepting newly-discovered “mosaics,” as there is good reason to believe that forgers are turning their attention to them.

The Museum and Library of the Palestine Exploration Fund at Jerusalem have been removed from the room opposite to the Tower of David to the Bishop's Buildings, near the Tombs of the Kings, where the use of a room has been kindly permitted by the Rev. Dr. Blyth, Bishop in Jerusalem and the East. The Museum is open daily, except Sundays, and the Honorary Secretary, Dr. D'Erf Wheeler, will give all information necessary.

Mr. Macalister's two reports on the excavations at Gezer have been reprinted from the Quarterly Statement in pamphlet form, and can be obtained on application to the Acting Secretary, price 1s. 2d. post free.

In order to make up complete sets of the "Quarterly Statement," the Committee will be very glad to receive any of the back numbers.
